SYNOPSIS : New Zealand is a good apple growing country and with modern facilities for cool storage a year round supply is available for local customers. Responsible for the storage and distribution is the Apple and Pear Board. It is also the Board's job to arrange and promote the marketing of N.Z. apples overseas. The wholesale and retail selling of apples in the picturesque Singapore market shows how markets for N.Z. apples are being developed in the Far East. The Board also assists growers in research, and the development of new strains of fruit.
